My experience as a model has been a great journey! I had always enjoyed taking pictures and editing them but I started thinking to myself, why not put myself in the shot? I also do love fashion and I didn't have a photographer so I'd asked friends and even used a timer! I know lame but it was a good start. I later found an album in my moms room. I went through it and my mom was so beautifully dress and always got her pictures taken. I turned more pages and saw pictures of me. I always wanted to look as beautiful as her and she taught me how to pose and got me outfits on what to wear. Then on I decided that I wanted to be a model and give it a shot. After I decided to make a portfolio from a site. I posted my pictures and started getting likes and comments and telling myself I can do this. The most challenging thing for me was confidence but each and everyday I get better and pushed myself forward. I even went to a school for modeling and acting to face the fears.. After graduating I just kept building my site and applied to many casting. I then saw an open call for a runway show took classes on how to better walk in stilettos. It was not just about the height. I am 4'11 and let me tell you, I learn to stand tall without being tall. You will discover rocky roads but more than ever, excitement and achievements. In my journey I like to show and tell others that you are beautiful just the way you are. Your mindset is what create all. -Tinita/Tinamary
